Motorcycle mishap

A ten-year-old boy on a motorcycle struck but did not injure a girl on a bicycle on Thursday afternoon on Beeching Avenue. The boy's father had given him the motorcycle, which was neither registered nor insured.

Progress slow but steady on ice rink

"Are we building the rink? Yes, but it takes time," said Jim Gillis, chairman of the Wilmington Arena Authority. "We have done a number of things, but nothing that's visible."

Progress has been slow on the plan to build an ice arena behind McNamara Tire. Wilmington voters approved the rezoning of the land for the rink 15 months ago in a special town meeting. The original plan, under which Ben Ristuccia would have built the rink for the authority, fell through with Ristuccia complaining of delays.

The authority then reorganized with Gillis as chairman. The new game plan was for Ristuccia to give the land and a sum of money to the authority, which would undertake the building project.

One major delay was the granting of a tax number for the non-profit arena authority. Gillis said he spent six months securing that number.

The authority has received a check for $500,000 from Ristuccia, and plans to meet with him soon to transfer the land. The rink will be named for Ristuccia's late wife Elinor.

The building permit for the rink was issued in June.

The rink is being designed by the architectural firm of Arthur Choo Associates of Boston. Final design is nearing completion.

Arthur Smith is to be the general contractor on the arena. A local contractor, Smith is also a member of the Wilmington Water and Sewer Commissioners and serves as associate building inspector.

Gillis said that with a committee of volunteers, delays were hard to avoid. A meeting this week was cancelled due to a death in the family of one of the arena authority members.

Gillis declined to discuss specifics on the design of the rink, saying that the business plan had yet to be voted. The business plan will have an effect on some of the details.

The authority, meanwhile, has been conducting research on a number of specialized areas of the rink, such as refrigeration.

School construction starts within week

The actual construction phase of the renovations to Wilmington High School will be underway within the next week, according to an optimistic estimate by Permanent Building Committee (PBC) Chairman Diane Allan.

In an interview Tuesday night, Allan said the contractor is already mobilizing and moving equipment on site and doing survey and site work. He is also submitting shop drawings for approval, erecting fencing, and establishing a field office. Initially, said Allan, it is planned that the septic system and foundations for the new area will be tackled first and done simultaneously.

One change in the scope of the renovation has been recommended by members of the PBC and others who attended a job meeting Tuesday morning, Allan said.

Largely "because of structural problems," explained Allan, it was suggested that the present maintenance building be demolished, instead of moving it to a site near the football field, as originally planned. Those present suggested a more suitable storage facility be built to replace the older building, one which would be "vandal-proof."

This recommendation will be brought up at Thursday night's school committee meeting, since the building is under the jurisdiction of the school department.

Rep. Beckwith to hold office hours

State Representative Geoffrey C. Beckwith, who represents Reading, North Reading and Wilmington's precinct 3 in the Massachusetts House, this week announced the schedule for his August district office hours.

"A state representative must be accessible to everyone in his or her district," said Beckwith, who holds regular office hours each month in order to make it easier for constituents to meet with him whenever they have a question or a problem concerning state government.

Beckwith will hold his August office hours at two locations: in North Reading on Thursday evening, August 22, he will be in the trustees' room of the Flint Memorial Library on Bow Street, from 5:30 to 7 p.m.; in Reading on Thursday evening, August 22 he will be in the conference room of the Reading Public Library on Middlesex Avenue, from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Beckwith reports that many people are already contacting him at both his home and State House office with inquiries regarding legislation, and with suggestions on a variety of issues.

"Interested citizens should never hesitate to call or write me any time," said Beckwith, who invited residents to get in touch with him at either his Boston office (State House, Room 236, Boston, Ma. 02133; phone 722-2430), or at home (252 Ash St., Reading, Ma 01867; phone 944-5030. "But these office hours will provide folks with an additional opportunity to see me personally and offer input, ask for information, or request assistance with a problem regarding state government."

Avco's 30th

Avco's 30-year employees assembled outside the plant on Monday morning to have their picture taken. But it was not just an ordinary picture. Each stood on a marked spot on the ground, so that the group formed a 30, while the photographer worked from a "cherrypicker' lift truck. Among the 30 year men were Les White, at far left, and Walter Kaminski, second from right. Avco's Systems Division is celebrating its 30th anniversary.

First students complete high-tech training at Omega

The Omega Technical Institute graduated its first class on Friday evening, granting certificates to 30 persons with newly - acquired skills in electronic assembly.

Omega is a unique school, which provides free high-tech schooling for persons who might be unskilled, unemployed or underemployed. Located in Wilmington Center, the school was founded as a private non-profit corporation earlier this year by Martin Brooks and Nancy Carbonneau. The school is financed by local industries, along with private funds of the founders, and a grant from the Bay State Skills Corp., a state-backed granting authority.

Those completing the 14-week course included people from Wilmington, Tewksbury, Lowell, Woburn, Reading, Peabody and Boston. Addressing the group at the graduation ceremony, Martin Brooks, president of the school, called the student body a "true league of nations." Many of the students are immigrants from foreign countries including Laos, Cambodia and India.

Graduation included a formal cap and gown ceremony, followed by a buffet. Graduating students received their certificates in electronic assembly from Joseph Kelley, an Omega board member and manager of Technical and Skills Training at Avco Systems Division in Wilmington. Addressing the graduates, Kelley stressed the importance of goal setting.

Over 70 percent of the graduates have already been placed within 11 high-tech companies in the area, with the average starting wage at $5.49 per hour.

The school, according to Brooks, operates with an orientation toward private industry. Students are trained to be total employees, not just solderers. In addition to bench skills, they receive training in interviewing, goal-setting and other personal development areas. Students who are still learning English are assigned to a bench with English-speaking students.

Brooks had retired from private industry after 25 years in management. He accepted a position in a skills program in New York City, run under the U. S. Dept. of Labor. Although dedicated to the concept of training people for high-tech jobs, Brooks could not stand working in the government mold. Decision - making and responsibility were too removed from the point of action.

Thus was born the idea for Omega -- a private organization, run by two people, Brooks and Carbonneau, supported by industry, meeting the needs of industry.

Board members of Omega Tech include Avco Systems Division, Compugraphic Corp., Computervision Corp, Computer-Link Corp, Datametrics / Dresser Industries, Digital Equipment Corp., Drytek, Dynamics Research Corp, and Ztel, all of Wilmington, M/A-COM MAC of Burlington and Billerica, Alpha Industries of Woburn and Methuen, ADAC Corp. of Woburn, Bard MedSystems of North Reading and Frequency Sources of Chelmsford.

The institute welcomed its second round of students on Monday. Anyone interested in the training program should call 658-7662 or visit Omega at its modern electronics training facility at 460 Main St., Wilmington.

Course completed

Dentist offers system for child identification

Parents are well aware of the problem of missing and abused children in the state as well as the nation. Today many parents safeguard their children by collecting fingerprints, photographs and other descriptive information.

Fingerprints, although accurate are not always useable. A child's dental record is far superior to any other identification because of the stability of the teeth. However, the absence of cavities and fillings in many children make most dental records indistinguishable.

Therefore, new methods of recording dental characteristics have been developed, one of which is the "Indentibite System."

The Identibite System is a wafer which permanently records thebite mark through the use of pressure sensitive papers. The recordingis accurate, efficient, safe, simple and easily stored for several decades.

The accuracy of a bite record registering edges of teeth has been established in criminal law and forensic studies. It has been calculated that the chances of two individuals having the same bite pattern are 2.5 billion to one. Therefore, positive identification of an individual can be obtained by comparing a parents record with that of a missing child.

Dr. Paul Caselle, a local dentist, will be offering a free Idéntibite Clinic at his office located at Eastgate Plaza in Wilmington Thursday, August 29, 1985 starting at 9 a.m. The clinic is open for children ages three and older. This bite record will be given to parents to supplement the child's identification records.

Parents should call 657-4550 for registration and any other information.

Winners

Dear Larz:

Would you please print the following in your paper for me? Thank you.

I would like to express my appreciation to all those who were so helpful to me on Friday night, July 26 when I became involved in an auto accident at Middlesex Avenue and Federal Street.

I'd like to thank the good samaritan who stopped, helped me out of the car, sent for the police and took charge of the traffic at the scene until they arrived; the one who went for the police; the police and fire departments for being so prompt; the fire department ambulance crew and the staff of the Regional Health Center in Wilmington who were all so kind to me.

The citizens of Wilmington should be thankful they have such people waiting to help them. You never know when it's going to be your turn!

Thank you all,
Patricia McDonald

Dear Larz:

Please find enclosed the clipping from your paper. It was sent to me by a very dear friend, Helen Carter who attended the Walker School with me. I believe this building should be restored and saved for posterity.

If you would let me know about a fund your paper is creating, I'll be glad to do my part.

I remember when:

Silver Lake was a place to go in the summer; Harriman's Tannery was the largest of its kind; Chief Hill was the law; Dr. Buzzell was the only doc; Henry Porter was postmaster; Grange Hall had wrestling; Thompsons Grove lead Saturday night dancing; Frank Dayton was head man and Ollie McGrane was sprayman; you could get a drink at the town pump on the common and the flag went up every day; they said the Lord's Prayer every day in the schools. I know, I was there.

All these things I named are probably gone, but the sweet memory lingers on.

P.S. Harry Huntley's was where you got the news.

Sincerely,
Paul Parsons
Asheville, N.C.

Dear Larz:

I enjoyed the insertion of the high school paper into certain issues of the Town Crier, and I see now why it must have been rewarding for you to work with them on the project, for I met your summer intern, Lauren Terrazzano.

Tiring as it must have been for a 17-year-old, she asked me questions for two hours! How she reduced all that chatter to the article in the July 31 paper should earn her an A+ from her journalism teacher. There were only two slight errors, and this is not a criticism of her as much as the educational systems - Bradford Washburn is the former director of the Museum of Science - and for the public's information one does not "hang" in the Archives; work is temperature and environmentally and humidity controlled to preserve for posterity; I believe it lies flat in the process; it is also my understanding that one has to have a PhD in art history and be working on a relevant subject and give six month's notice to see them!

As a Boston tv station keeps reminding us, "Kids are the Future." Lauren did not tell of my excitement over the opportunities afforded my granddaughter, or early acceptance at Princeton, winning seven awards at graduation, feted by the Air Force, given a Research Fellowship which gives her experience in her college major - chemical engineering; and the conferring of women engineers from all aspects of the field telling the girls the behind-the-scenes nuts-to-bolts of that profession which could never have happened until this generation. More power to them!

Tina

Dear Larz:

For over two and a half years now, there have been people holding signs outside the Avco Systems Division plant in Wilmington on Tuesday mornings. As members of this group, the Witness for Peace at Avco, we thought it might be helpful to offer, in writing, an explanation of our presence there, and to invite public dialogue with Avco personnel and the greater Wilmington community.

We are people of faith (of different denominations) who are trying to speak a word of hope that the world does no thave to end in the flames and the poison of a nuclear war. We see our presence at the Avco entrances as a fundamentallay religious act of witness, of testifying that true security rests on recognizing that we human beings are frail creatures, called to trust God and one another. We testify also that weapons of all kinds (and in all places) are offensive to the human family, not so much in themselves, but because they make manifest the underlying desire to destroy brothers and sisters.

We stand in recognition of our own guilt in perpetuating fear and violence by our weakness, past and present. We come not to judge anyuone, but to stand with workers and with the community under our common moral challenge to rid our world, our nation, our churches, and our hearts of the ned to seek violent resolutions to our problems.

We welcome your thoughts on how we all might build peace together. You may contact us by writing: Witness for Peace at Avco; Box 736, Wilmington, Ma. 01887.

We pledge ourselves to answer all correspondence.

As one of our signs reads, "No one is powerless; we are all responsible.

Ann Eno, Westford; David Specht, West Medford; the Rev. Paul Gaudet, OMI, Lowell; Anna Barbara Carter-Bruno, Reading.

Lauri Brown was delegate to LaLeche conference

Lauri Brown of Wilmington and Nancy Sikes of Burlington were delegates to La Leche League's 10th International Conference held recently in Washington, D.C. The three day conference featured well-known authors such as Dr. David Elkins (The Hurried Child and All Grown Up and No Place to Go), Jim Trelease (The Read-Aloud Handbook), Karen Pryor (Don't Shoot the Dog); and internationally acclaimed doctors and researchers such as Dr. Armond Goldman, Dr. Susan Ludington, psychiatrist Dr. Marya Griffin and Pediatric allergist Dr. William Cook. Speakers from around the world addressed the conference attendees on all phases of parenting in more than 100 sessions. La Leche League provides information and encouragement for those interested in breastfeeding; this International Conference afforded the opportunity for members to hear doctors, researchers, educators, and parents discuss new as well as tried and true ideas about parenting.

It was noted that when La Leche League was formed, less than 11 percent of new mothers were breastfeeding. Now over 60 percent are nursing, a tribute to La Leche League, states Surgeon General Koop. Katahleen Cravero, project officer UNICEF< said, "La Leche League leaders have been the guiding force of mother-to-mother support movements in a large number of developing countries. UNICEF itself has learned much from the League's approach, especially from its success in gaining the trust and confidence of mothers all over the world."

Carl Anderson, the deputy assistant to President Reagan, welcomed the delegates who came from every state and 13 countries. Special arrangements were made for the more than 2000 children who accompanied their parents. More than 60,000 diapers were used during the gathering!

Joan Lunden, hostess of ABC-TV's "Good Morning America," emphasized how breastfeeding was a special gift a mother gives her children, one which lasts a lifetime because of the nurturing and closeness breast-feeding gives.

Breastfeeding is recommended bya the American Academy of Pediatrics and the World Health Organization, which proclaim that it should be encouraged in all countries. Research reveals that breast milk is the "perfect infant nutrition" containing everything that the baby needs in the early months.

Internationally, La Leche League has groups in 44 countries reaching over two million mothers with information in 28 languages. Lauri Brown is a leader of the Burlington La Leche League group, leading meetings and providing telephone help. Meetings are held in members' homes to discuss the practical, physical and psychological aspects of breastfeeding. This month's meeting will be held on Tuesday, August 20, 1985 at 8 p.m. at the home of Amy Fitzpatrick, 5 Phyllis Ave., Burlington. Those who would like more information should contact Lauri Brown at 657-7688 , Nancy Sikes at 272-8119, or Linda Sullivan, 643-6477.

Lost Colony housing

During the past several weeks there have been some unfortunate remarks on the part of some persons regarding a program of the Wilmington Housing Authority. The WHA has been seeking to construct eight new homes, as a part of its 705 program, in Wilmington. At the present time there are four such homes in this town.

Of the eight new homes there are some proposed in a region which was dubbed, many years ago by this paper, as the "Lost Colony." It is an area which is totally isolated from the rest of Wilmington by geographical reasons such as swampy land and gravel pits.

The Lost Colony can only be approached by Burroughs Road, in North Reading. It is two miles from North Reading's Main Street. The total distance to Wilmington is probably four of five miles. And, to further the discussion, Burroughs Road is sometimes under water, because of an overflow from Martins Pond.

The 705 program is designed to provide housing for low and moderate income families. Another term that is used is "scattered site housing." The purpose is to have housing that will not be conspicuous, in any neighborhood. It is a good program.

To construct three 705 homes, after all the publicity of the past few weeks, in the Lost Colony would be in effect to rezone that area. There are only five homes at this time in the lost colony.

Once upon a time the towns of New England provided for some of their unfortunates by having the families put on a "town farm."

If Wilmington builds 705 homes in the Lost Colony, it will in effect be doing that very thing. Without any vote the area will have been rezoned to become the town farm.

Elks host day of fun for 'Superstars'

by Lauren Terrazzano

The tenth annual "Superstars" Day was held Tuesday, August 6th at the Tewksbury- Wilmington Elks field. The fun-filled day was sponsored by the Tewksbury-Wilmington Elks and the Wilmington Recreation Deptartment.

Originated by Bob Aylward of Tewksbury and Bob Scanlon of Wilmington, the annual event has been an immense success over the past decade with all involved. Special needs athletes came from camps situated in Tewksbury, Billerica, Dracut, Methuen, Lowell, Wilmington and Camp Hope in Melrose. Two local camps that partook in the festivities were Camp Forty Acres in Wilmington and Camp Pohelo of Tewksbury.

The medley of events began at approximately 9:30 AM when the 253 athletes, led by Wilmington Recreation Staff member Bill Simmons, recited the Olympic pledge. After that, the athletes participated in their chosen events. The activities consisted of the 300 yard dash, the 30 yard dash, softball roll, zig zag run, the hockey shot , and the horseshoe throw.

Despite the competition between the involved camps, the actual winning of the events had little or no signifigance to the athletes. All the athletes exhibited excellent sportsmanship towards their supposed rivals in the competition. Having fun and enjoying the sunlit day was the primary concern for all involved. Bill Simmons explained, "Winning isn't the only goal. This is a meeting of exceptional kids who have alot of love to give." Staff members from each camp cheered the athletes to the finish line, while some even ran the races with them.

Julie Howard, ten, revealed that her favorite event was the zig zag. This is her third year involved with the "Superstars" Day. When asked about his opinion of the day, Adam Nepveau of Wilmington replied, "It's alot of fun. I tried my hardest." Adam participated in the majority of the events, but did very well in the 300 yard dash.

After the events, the crowd broke for lunch .The Elks supplied soft drinks and awards to the athletes. Even though the athletes derived much satisfaction from the awarding of the ribbons and trophies, nothing surpassed the feelings of love , friendship, and fun expressed throughout the day.

And the winners are...

Mary Kelley, Wilmington Recreation Dept. Staff member, records the names of the winners of the 30 yard dash at the "Superstars" field day . Special needs camps from several areas in Massachusetts participated in the various events Tuesday.

The Queen vs. Wilmington All-Stars

The "Queen and Her Court," a world renowned four member softball team, will take on the Wilmington All-Stars at Aprile Field Wednesday, August 7 at 8 p.m. The Queen and Her Court has been thrilling spectators all over the world for the past 20 years.

This famed four member array, featuring the greatest women's softball fast-pitch pitcher in the world, Rosie Black, who has a blazing fastball that reminds one of Nolan Ryan or Sandy Koufax in his prime, along with three other stellar performers.

. The indispensable player at first base who captures the audience's attention is Lotta Chatter, the ham of the team. Using a well-calculated blend of comedy, softball magic, unrestrained enthusiasm and pure athletic skill, Lotta always sends the fans home buzzing with appreciation.

Completing the Court's lineup are two super athletes. The dynamic all-around athlete at the shortstop position is Scott Elwell. With outstanding credentials in football, baseball, basketball and as a decathlon winner, this versatile competitor demonstrates his abilities with explosive running speed.

The sure glove behindt he plate belongs to Mike Griffin. As a veteran catcher, he was an outstanding prospect with the Atlanta Braves organization. His homerun bat and quick running lends dynamic strength to the Court. It would appear to be a mismatch with the loss of five players, but from the opponents bench, the Court's batting lineup looks like "murders row."

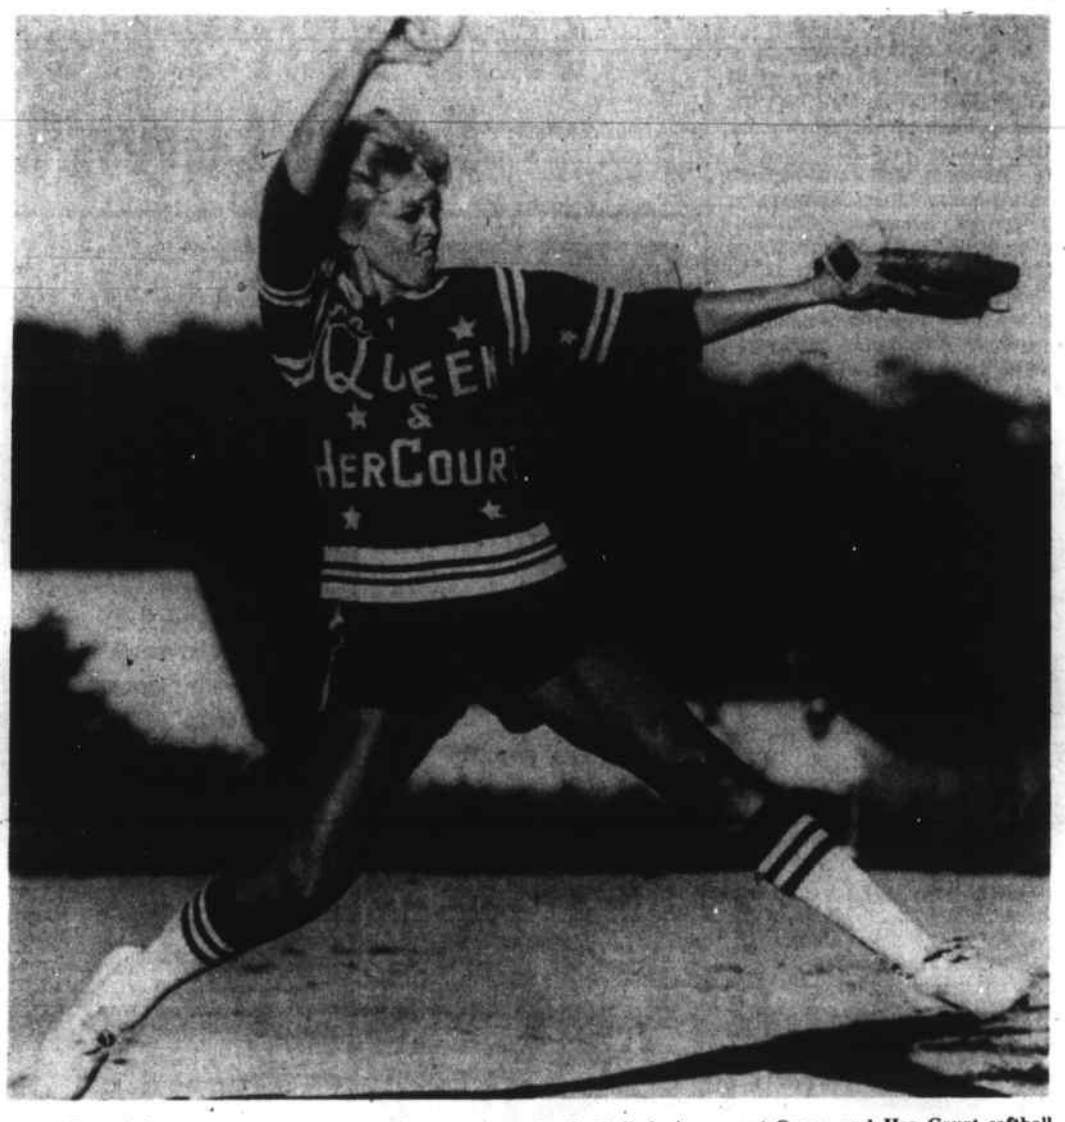

Tickets for this outstanding attraction are available at the following locations: Doyle's Hardware, Farmer and the Del and D & D Gulf. In addition, tickets may be purchased at the box office the night of the game.

Jason Stephenson award

The Wilmington Youth Soccer Association would like to thank all those who contributed to the scholarship fund in the memory if Jason Stephenson.

The donations were placed in a scholarship fund to be awarded annually beginning in 1986.

Anyone who might still wish to contribute can contact John DeMarco at 8 Kenwood Avenue, Wilmington.

Black burns fastball

Rosie Black fires a blazing fastball during recent Queen and Her Court softball action. Rosie and her mates will be in Wilmington tonight (August 7) to battle the Wilmington All-Stars starting at 8 p.m.

Tewksbury stays red hot

Tewksbury remained the hottest team in the Northeast League by beating Wilmington ,4-3 on Monday and first place Chelmsford, 7-6 Tuesday.

The victory over Chelmsford put Burlington in first place by themselves and Tewksbury will decide who wins the division by playing Burlington on the last day of the season.

In the win over Wilmington at Hazel Field, the visitors went ahead quickly with three runs in the first inning and thy key hit being a bases loaded single by Wilmington catcher Chris Parr.

Tewksbury pulled within one in the second inning with a leadoff double by catcher Chris Mader, an infield error and a two run single by shortstop Jeff Smith.

In the fifth inning, Tewksbury tied the game on a two out walk by pitcher Tom Gallella, who stole second and was driven home by John Miller's line single to center.

The winning run was scored in the bottom of the sixth when Charlie Gath singled and scored on Chris Mader's second double of the game, a deep blast to left center.

Tom Gallella started for Tewksbury, pitching six innings, allowing three runs, seven hits, three walks and a strikeout.

Dennis Boudreau relieved in the sixth with runners on first and second and no one out. He struck out the first two batters and the game ended on a dramatic play of a line drive hit off of Boudreau's leg to secondbaseman John Miller, who charged the ball and made a spectacular off-balance throw to get the runner at first on a close play to end the game

In Tewksbury's big upset over Chelmsford, they again had to come from behind. Starting pitcher Chris LeBlanc walked three consecutive batters in the second inning before a flyball to left by Chelmsford was misplayed, allowing three runs to score.

Tewksbury came back with two in the second. Catcher Chris Mader led off with a single, a walk to rightfield, Shawn Blades and a two base throwing error ot leftfielder Greg Parkes ' sacrifice bunt.

Tewksbury went ahead in the third on consecutive singles by CF Tom Gallella 2b , John Miller and 3B Mike McLaughlin. All three scored when Chris Mader's ground ball to third was misplayed and thrown into rightfield, allowing three Tewksbury runners to score.

Tewksbury added two more runs in the bottom of the fourth. DH Rick LeDuc and CF Tom Gallella walked. LeDuc later scored on th e RBI single by 2B John Miller, Gallella scored on a long SF fly to left by 1B Charlie Gath.

Rangers take title

The Rangers defeated the A's to win the Tewksbury Minor League town championship. The pitching star of the game was Eric Morris. Eric pitched five strong innings, striking out 12 and allowing only two runs.

Jesse Sawyer pitched the final inning to preserve the win for the Rangers.

The hitting star of the game was Jesse Sawyer. Jesse drilled a tripie, hit a single, walked and was hit by a pitch. Jesse also scored three runs. Eric Morris, Brian O'Neill and Brian Merrow also led the team in hitting, with two hits each.

Lyle Morgan and Tom Keating each had one hit. Tina Rideout had a perfect day at the plate with a single and two walks.

The defensive star of the game was Lyle Morgan; Lyle caught an outstanding game and threw a strike to first to pick off an A's baserunner.

Jonathan Dion came on in relief of Keith Mahoney and pitched a tremendous game for the A's. Jonathan was particularly sharp in the sixth inning when he struck out three consecutive batters to end the inning.

Brian Gangemi was the hitting star of the game for the A's with three base hits.

The coaches and fans would like to thank umpire-in-chief Bob Parker, Ron Olson, Bob Kelley and Rob Parker for umpiring the final game of the year.

Fifty-four years of Wilmington family medicine

Sullivan hopes to maintain tradition

Dr. John J. Sullivan hopes to carry on a 54-year tradition — a tradition of family-centered medical care for the Wilmington community and surrounding towns.

On July 1, Dr. Sullivan, an internist and pediatrician, took over the medical practice at 172 Middlesex Ave., Wilmington, a practice which was started back in 1931 by Dr. Ernest MacDougall, a general practitioner.

Hundreds, even thousands, of families from Wilmington, Reading, North Reading, Woburn, Billerica, Tewksbury, Andover and other area communities received most of their medical care over the next 35 years from Dr. MacDougall, first at his office on Church Street, Wilmington, and then at his office at 190 Middlesex Ave. Dr. MacDougall died in 1966, and the following year, another general practitioner, Dr. Ralph Lepore, assumed the practice; five years later, he moved it to its current location at 172 Middlesex Ave.

Over the 18 years that he had the practice, Dr. Lepore continued the tradition of providing primary care to babies, children, adults and the elderly of the Wilmington area, until his retirement this June, when Dr. Sullivan took over.

"We've seen the same families year after year — we feel very close to our patients," says Joanne Ethier, R.N., who has worked for the practice for the past 18 and one-half years. "To me, that's the best part about this kind of practice, knowing the people. They're not just passing through, the way they do in a clinic setting."

That's the way it is in a family-centered practice, the nurse adds. "We have a very close relationship with the people, and that's a nice feeling. Some of our patients have even moved to the Cape, and to New Hampshire, but they still come back here."

Another face familiar to patients who've come to the Wilmington medical office over the years is Hermine Brailey, who has been the business manager of the office since 1967.

"We've known the children since they were babies — we've watched them grow up," says Mrs. Brailey. "And now," she adds with a smile, "we're seeing them getting married and starting families of their own."

Dr. Sullivan, who is board certified in both internal medicine and pediatrics, intends to continue the tradition of family-centered medical care at the Wilmington doctor's office. "Our goal is to go on providing the same personal medical care to both adults and children that Dr. MacDougall gave in years gone by and that Dr. Lepore gave until his retirement." the physician explains, "with the exception of obstetrical care.

"We want to continue to offer the same medical services the community has received in the past — treatment for patients with acute medical problems, chronic medical problems such as hypertension, diabetes and cardiac disease, injury, and other conditions such as allergy problems."

Dr. Sullivan has admitting privileges at Winchester Hospital and Choate-Symmes, and comes to the Wilmington practice after serving as an internist for the past seven years at the Regional Health

by JIM ROUILLARD

Have you heard?

It's chic to be poor in New England.

Try telling that to Stoneham's Sheila Herbeck, however. If true, then Herbeck and her volunteer staff are up-to-the-earlobe experts in the latest fashion.

The concept of poverty chic is set forth in Joel Garreau's ingenious and entertaining best-seller, "The Nine Nations of North America."

But there's less fashion, than fear and frustration, in the poverty syndrome which Herbeck and her volunteer staff witness seven days a week — every week of the year.

Herbeck is Executive Director of Stoneham's swiftly growing Community Service Network (CSN), which serves the entire Greater Boston North Shore area.

Since Herbeck's assumption of the unpaid top spot at CSN, in late 1983, the agency has grown from a 10-member participant group to 55 current members, and still growing, including the Towns of North Reading, Reading and Stoneham, four local hospitals, and community agencies which are simply too numerous to name. One of the newest members? The United Way of Massachusetts Bay.

Herbeck, according to local officials and her staff, has been the prime mover in the explosive growth of the non-profit, incorporated agency. The CSN is a young baby, but it's bouncing and growing at an astonishing rate.

"Sheila has been the spark-plug to achieve these results," said Ben Pasquariello, Stoneham Director of Civil Defense.

And Ernie Doucette, the newest member of the CSN Board, representing North Reading, added, "When Sheila came to us and started talking I said to myself, 'Can one agency achieve all this.' So I asked (former Selectman) Jim McDonough of Stoneham if it's true. 'Yep,' he said,'and more.' "

The CSN is founded on the concept of "networking," a process designed to buttress the family unit, at its most vulnerable times of crisis, and to deliver needed services swiftly.

Herbeck and the Network volunteers are geared to one basic, massive purpose: to reduce bureaucratic intransigence, delay and stress on people, or, in Herbeck's own words, "Cut the red tape and get the help to those who need it, FAST, and to be morally supportive during the process."

Joanne Tramontozzi, CSN Director of Volunteers, provided an example:

"One client sliced her hand on a machine at work — yet she faces a 14-day delay for money from Workmen's Compensation, and has no money to pay the rent, or for the anti-biotics necessary to fight infection. We try to help her find the cash for her needs."

"Take another, hypothetical case," Herbeck said. "a mother of three small children. For

Taking a stab at graffiti

This is a 'what if" column. What if such and such happened. This this or that would result. Members of the Lawrence City Council sat around a table last week and asked themselves a question that must've gone something like this: "What if we ban the sale of all spray paint cans and magic markers to those under the age of eighteen? Then we'll surely cut down on all the disgusting graffiti that's plastered all over the sides of our buildings, on our signs, walls and bridges."

So they went ahead and voted to ban the sale of spray paint cans and certain magic markers to those Lawrence youths who are under the age of eighteen. When I heard this I immediately thought of the Bizzarro cartoon I saw in a Boston newspaper the other day. It pictured a man-sized cat, dressed to look like a teenager in a pair of sneakers and jeans and a high school letter jacket, handing a role of bills to a middle-aged man in a suit as he is about to enter a doorway. The cat says, "Say, mister, I seem to have miplaced my I.D. Could you buy me a couple of cans of tuna?"

Who does the Lawrence City Council think it's fooling? Do they really think that by putting spray paint cans in locked cabinets in stores and requiring proper identification that they will put a halt to the graffiti on the sides of municipal buildings? I think they'd have batter luck banning the sale of tuna fish to cats unless they can prove they are the dependents of responsible owners. In fact it may even result in just the opposite happening, since kids who do that sort of vandalism will regard this measure as a challenge, not a threat.

First of all, the young people who get their kicks from spraying their own brand of graffiti all over the sides of public buildings are going to get their hands on those spray cans of paint one way or another. The Lawrence City Council has succeeded in only makng it difficult (not to mention extremely annoying) for those young people who are responsible and legitimately in need of these items to purchase them.

What if a kid wants to spray paint a cabinet he's built for woodworking class, and he doesn't have a driver's license? He has to, more than likely, drag his father or older brother along to the hardware store just so he can vouch for the kid. I know that that would bug the heck out of me after a short while, whether I was the young kid looking to buy a can of spray paint or the father whose day has to be interrupted to tag along for verification purposes.

It's not that I wouldn't put myself out for my son under almost any circumstances, mind you. It's just under ridiculous circumstances like the ones set down by the Lawrence City Council that I'd mind. Perhaps

North Reading seeks state funds for pollution cure

After a delay of many years ,the town of North Reading may finally get promised funds to determine the source of pollution for the Stickney well. That well, off Concord Street in North Reading and a few hundred yards from the Wilmington town line, was the first place in Massachusetts reported to have been polluted with trichloroethylene (TCE) back about 1979.

TCE is reported to be a cancer causing agent. As consequence the well was shut down. North Reading since then has been purchasing water from out of town sources at a reported cost of $500,000 a year.

Five hundred thousand in state funds was allocated to search for the source of that contamination. The town never received that money.

During the past year, according to the North Reading Transcript, the funds were held up by the state Executive Office of Community Development (EOCD). Among other things EOCD allocates state funds used in housing projects, housing for the elderly and low income housing.

On July 22 the North Reading selectmen by unanimous vote signed a fair housing agreement with the state EOCD. Residents of North Reading in the past several weeks have expressed themselves as opposed to a proposal for low income housing in that town The opposition was voiced at the same time that North Reading residents were opposing a low income housing proposal in the "Lost Colony" of Wilmington.

In reporting on the event the Transcript says the selectmen were "cajoled" into signing the three part affirmative action because the EOCD had threatened to withhold all future state discretionary funds to North Reading.

"Nobody likes the way this is being jammed down our throats" was the comment of the chairman of the board, as he inked the pact, the Transcript reported. "The problem is the carrot is so big, we really have no choice."

Town Counsel John Walkey of North Reading has told the board of selectmen of that town that North Reading has "few legal options" to prevent the Wilmington Housing Authority from building three or four low income housing units in the "Lost Colony" section of Wilmington, adjacent to the North Reading town line.

Walkey was responding to a North Reading selectmen's request of three weeks ago to determine what legal rights, if any, the town of North Reading had, to block off access to the project. According to Walkey "There does not appear to be any direct and effective way" to do so.

The North Reading Transcript, reporting on Walkey, noted that the only access to the WHA project would be through Burroughs Road, in North Reading. Walkey told the selectmen that "There exists no authority to discriminate among persons who propose to use a public way, based upon their residence in another town."

Similarly he said that North Reading, (already short of water, ed.) does not have the right to refuse to supply the WHA residents with water, because it already supplies water to the handful of homes on Virginia and Larson Roads.

On the other hand Walkey said he did not see any legal obligation for North Reading to provide fire and police service inside the Town of Wilmington unless there is some outstanding contractual agreement do to so. He also cautioned that if North Reading intends to provide fire and police service to the present residents of Virginia and Larson Roads, then it may be not legal to refuse similar services to the tenants of the Wilmington Housing Authority.

After the discussion by the selectmen of the report by the North Reading Town Counsel they voted to ask the acting town administrator (town manager, ed.) to arrange a meeting with a representative of the Executive Office of Community Development (EOCD) to determine what rights North Reading has in the case. The EOCD is the state agency that is financing the WHA proposed housing in the Lost Colony.

Wilmington senior topics

Where credit is due

Many seniors have been calling the center or have dropped in to say how nice the new senior center is starting to look, with all the new windows and clapboards on the back and side of the building. For all this hard work it is necessary to give credit where it is due. That is to Rep. Jim Miceli who once again asked the Carpenters' Union Local No. 41 to give us another Saturday to complete the outside of the building for us.

The Saturday they selected was by far the hottest day this summer, but the oppressive heat did not stop these wonderful young men from donating their day to the Wilmington Senior Center. A day that other young people like themselves were spending at beaches. A thank you from all of us seems to inadequate, but that is all we have to give. So to Rep. Jim Miceli and the wonderful young men from Carpenters' Union Local No. 41, thanks from all the Wilmington senior citizens.

Dr. Leavitt on Friday

Podiatrist Dr. Leavitt will be at the Center on Friday, August 9 from 9 a.m. He will be there until he checks and treats the feet of those seniors waiting to see him. Remember to take your Medicare, Medex or Medicaid cards. Those wishing to see the doctor and needing a ride to the center by minibus, please call the center the day before. The doctor then will wait for you to arrive.

August whist

The first whist party of August will be held at the Senior Center Monday, August 12 starting at 9 p.m. Seniors are asked to be there early so they may be seated. Those arriving late sometimes find it difficult to get a seat in the game. Prizes are donated for the whist parties by Rotary and Kiwanis clubs and the Whist Party Committee purchases prizes with the money realized on the raffle.

Dental health screening

Ms. Jackson of the National Adult Dental Health Screening Clinic will be at the center Thursday, August 22. She will speak to seniors on the program. Wilmington was selected as one of the Councils on Aging throughout the country to take part in the dental screening examinations. These seniors will, on September 10, go to the center where a dentist will be set up to examine 23 patients. She will want some seniors with dentures and some with their own teeth. The purpose of the screening is to determine why some elderly persons lose their teeth or develop serious gum disease and others do not. Five dollars will be given to each senior who participates in the screening.

Chic to be poor

TWO SEVEN-DAYS-A-WEEK UNPAID WORKERS, Joanne Tramontozzi and Sheila Herbeck, executive director of the Stoneham-based non-profit Community Service Network, hold their latest, and one of their proudest achievements: a directory of agencies to assist people throughout the North Shore with referral services and direct aid such as food, clothing and emergency shelter.

whatever reason, the father decides he doesn't like the burden of supporting his family. So he walks out.

"The wife is faced with isolation, mortgage payments, no medical coverage, no food, no fuel. It's November and the kids need winter coats and boots.

"Enter the CSN. we do an intake to assess the priorities. First, we supply food from our food pantry or from one in another community. Second: winter clothing for the kids from our own or another clothing bank.

"Then we discuss transportation. Can she come to us; or must we go to her, to assist with a Welfare checklist, to make sure the client has all the necessary papers for whatever she's entitled to — and won't have to make three, four or even five trips back to Welfare because each time she's told she needs still another form?

"We help her apply for an emergency Medicaid card if the children need medical attention. We might hook her into assistance for medication, and fuel assistance.

"Throughout this, Joanne would assign an advocate to walk the client through the process, and immediately steer her towards some counselling, because she and the children need to talk about the crisis that has occurred."

But that's just the start. The CSN may assist the client in court (without a legal separation, the department of Welfare does not accept abandonment, Tramontozzi said) to obtain a temporary order to prove separation ("And believe me," Herbeck added, "we seek out and report any knowledge of Welfare fraud. We are 'mandated reporters,' so we have to report any fraud which comes to our knowledge, or face a $1,000 fine.")

"Then we write letters to the bank or any other creditor or utility," Tramontozzi continued, "to seek breathing space for the family to get their life together. We may recommend marriage counselling as well, to bring the family unit back together, if possible."

There's no question the step-by-step process is exhaustive, as outlined by Herbeck and Tramontozzi.

But it still doesn't end there.

The CSN does a follow-up on every case — and almost invariably finds a bonus: "Our clients who receive help," Tramontozzi said, "turn around and help others. It's a benign circle of help and self-help.

"Most people want to work; they want occupation. But when you're facing the pressure of a crisis, you may not be able to function effectively to get the help you need. That's where the Network comes in."

And the range of help provided is mighty indeed: Herbeck herself may be roused from a midnight bed by local police, to locate emergency housing for the homeless — or find herself, in the dismal, early hours, dissuading a teen from suicide long enough to seek professional counselling.

How does the CSN achieve so much with volunteers?

Tramontozzi: "The thing is, we don't set down: 'You must help us for 10 hours a week.' If you can help for an hour, fine. Delivering food, or clothing, or picking them up? Fine.

"Before the Network, a person needing help might get duplication of effort by two or more agencies," Ben Pasquariello said. "You may have had people milking the system and taking help away from other needy.

"Now, under this system you can call one person, and she can assign the client to the right agency, to prevent duplication and milking. As Stoneham's Director of Civil Defense, I can call Sheila in case of disaster and can say,'Look, I have 15 families, some of whom are in shock. I need your help.'

"Take for example, a woman who's gone through some disaster, and needs help, not just from a doctor, but maybe from another woman, the kind that the person with a loss can really relate to.

"In a fire, it's the woman who usually feels it the most. She's lost everything: her memories, her mementoes; in a sense, her whole life, have gone up in flames. Now most professional agencies might not be able to supply the really in-tune help that Sheila and her group can provide.

"And I must not be the only one impressed. The United Way thinks it's good, because it's a member. The towns think it's good, or they wouldn't be there.

"Medical science is great, but we function on a different policy in the Network. It's the tried, good old one-on-one. Because it works."

Herbeck and Tramontozzi, at relative ease away from their endlessly ringing phone, agreed to a Saturday interview on the back patio, outside their planned new headquarters at the Stoneham Council on Aging.

Their new, tiny office, crammed already with two desks, office furniture and files, awaits the untying of bureaucratic knots for a phone to be installed, and will not be fully operational until sometime in September, Herbeck said.

Tips on car air-conditioners

Is your car's air-conditioner keeping you completely cool this summer? If not, says Car Care Council, check it out.

SOUND OF TROUBLE

A noisy exhaust system is a clue to dangerous trouble, warns the Car Care Council. Deadly carbon monoxide fumes can seep into the car, causing sleepiness, and slowed reflexes.

Don't ignore the tell-tale sound of leakng exhaust. It can be fatal.

KEEP IT CLEAN

Your car may have as many as ten different kinds of filters, each performing a vital function. One removes dust from the air that goes into the engine; another takes dirt out of the gasoline, both working to prevent engine wear and carburetor trouble. Then there's the one that removes contaminants from the engine oil and another filter on the automatic transmission. These and other car filters, when clogged, can cause needless expense and poor car operation. The Car Care Council advises regular servicing and replacement of the filters at recommended intervals.

BATTERY A PATSY?

Does your battery go dead before your engine springs to life?

The Car Care Council suggests that it may not be the battery's fault. Check for worn spark plugs or other ignition components that cause a balky engine to run down a battery. The Council recommends periodic engine diagnosis and engine tune-up for maximum dependability and economy.

A GOOD BELT HELPS

Here's a tip to avoid car trouble. Improperly cared-for cooling systems can result in stalled cars and expensive repair bills. The Car Care Council suggests periodic inspections of drive belts and radiator hoses to avoid cooling system problems.

And be sure the cooling system is clean and filled with the correct mixture of coolant.

next they'd like to see parents accompany their children to the gym class shower to make sure the kids wash behind their ears. It's a ridiculous ruling that could creep up in any city or two.

The bottom line is this: kids bent on spray painting the sides of Lawrence City Hall are going to get their hands on cans of spray paint even if they have to drive to, say, Salem, N.H. And the idea of coaxing neighboring towns to follow suit with similar bans is even more ridiculous. A better solution to the problem of graffiti would be to stiffen the punishment if you're caught spraying your ugly messages all over the sides of public buildings, signs, walls, bridges, et cetera.

Up till now, there's been little or no repercussion if you're caught spraying your favorite message to the world on the side of a public building. That's been the case not only in Lawrence but in just about every town around these parts. If these kids who are doing the damage were punished when they were caught - and I mean seriously punished, they'd be less likely to repeat the offense. And let's not use the excuse that they're too hard to catch as an excuse to overlook punishment as a deterrent, because if that excuse were applied to all crimes, we'd have a totally lawless society.

I recall a story I heard a few months ago from a young woman who lives in our area. She and her boy friend were cauoht by a state trooper in Vermont just as they were putting the finishing touches on a piece of graffiti they'd sprayed on the side of a huge slab of granite along side of Rte. 89. "That cop took our keys away from us, then told us to remove every drop of that paint," she recalled to me. "When we told him we didn't have anything to remove it with, he said he didn't care. He just wanted it removed by the tima he returned with our keys. We ended up spending hours chipping away at the paint with a tire iron!"

That's the kind of punishment that's likely to curb graffiti, not banning the sale of spray paint cans to under eighteen-year-olds. We live in a state that is quickly becoming over-regulated. Politicians seem determined to over-regulate us in the name of prevention. It is bad enough that lawmakers want to tell us that we must use our seat belts when we drive Now the Lawrence City Council wants to set a precedent by banning the sale of spray paint cans and certain magic markers to under eighteen-year-olds. It's the most foolish act of political power I've ever seen.

If they're going to ban spray paint cans from youths, why stop there? Why not ban the sale of all disposable packaging in an effort to curb littering? Now that's a problem in this state. No, that wouldn't work either. People obsessed with tossing dispoable packaging out the windows of their cars will only drive to N.H. to buy goods wrapped in throw away packages. You'd have to get neighboring states to go along with you, and that's not likely. If states can't agree on a minimum drinking age, they'd never agree on disposable packaging being banned.

No, banning the sale of all items in disposable packaging in an effort to cut down on littering would also be a ludicrous move, since only a small percentage of callous individuals litter. Stiffening the fine for littering is a better solution to the problem, and that's pretty much what we've done. Yet that isn't the kind of reasoning that was used to arrive at that foolish spray paint ban in Lawrence.

There are a few more bans that they might want to put into law. Why not ban cartoons and MTV from those under the age of twelve? We adults all know that that stuff can be harmful to young, formative minds. As for cartoons, they're mostly for adults anyway. Try to pass that into law and see what kind of success you have.

Maybe the sale of sweets to overweight people should be banned. Protect them from turning into diabetics. After all, aren't lawmakers supposed to be looking out for our well-being? If they think you shouldn't be eating that piece of cake, maybe you should listen to them.

An there's no way car radios should be played while windows are down, since loud music can ba a real public annoyance. So lawmakers should reconsider putting a ban on that, also.

The list of "bans" could go on forever. If it got long enough, it could begin to include all those terrible bans a few maniacal world leaders would like to see come back in vogue. I think you politicians get the point. Some regulations are necessary for the well-being of our citizenry. It's good to keep liquor out of the hands of fifteen-year-olds. Pornography and cigarettes, too. But there's a limit to how many regulations are needed. We're supposed to be a free society, the foundation of which is built on the principle of free choice. If we choose to break a law, then we are punished. But it is useless to establish regulations that attempt to prevent crimes. They simply do not work in most cases.

Before you'd know it, some lawmaker would be telling us our grandparents should be banned from lovers lane in an attempt to control the population growth.

When a boat trailer breaks down!

An unfortunate but all-too-common sight along Massachusetts highways is the disabled boat trailer or travel trailer, usually with one wheel removed. While the disgruntled owner waits for help, traffic slows to a crawl as tempers and car radiators approach the boiling point.

Trailer owners need to be on the alert. "Unlike the squeaky wheel that usually gets the attention, the need for a new trailer wheel bearing is a problem that's usually not heard," says Stewart W. Hall, Director of Automotive Services for AAA Massachusetts. "A bad trailer wheel can be 20 or 30 feet behind the driver, who neither feels nor hears any of the early warning signs generally associated with a bad tire or a failing wheel bearing."

AAA Massachusetts says that wheel bearings should be checked frequently and repacked with the manufacturer-specified wheel bearing grease as a routine part of trailer maintenance. Whenever grease seals are removed, they should be replaced with new ones as a standard maintenance practice.

"This type of service is especially important on boat trailers which are frequently submerged in water and, therefore, more vulnerable to corrosion," AAA's Hall says.

A properly maintained trailer will benefit the owner - and other motorists as well.

"Disabled trailers are one of the more difficult traffic problems we face, especially when they break down on highways already congested with vacation travelers," says Massachusetts State Police Sgt. James Sartori. "Owners should keep their trailers in top mechanical condition, consider carrying a jack and a spare trailer wheel and tire, and make sure they have reflective safety triangles to use in the event of a breakdown. These precautions will make traveling easier for everyone," Sartori says.

Center in Wilmington. During his years at the Regional Health Center, he also served for a year as coordinator of the center's residency program in primary care internal medicine, a program affiliated with Tufts University Medical School and Faulkner Hospital. He is an assistant clinical professor of medicine at Tufts.

Dr. Sullivan, who grew up in Brighton, now lives in Andover with his wife, Jane, and their three children. He earned a bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, a master of science degree in the same field from Northeastern University, and received his M.D. degree from Tufts Medical School.

He then served a rotating internship at Rhode Island Hospital in Providence, and was a junior assistant resident in surgery at the same hospital. Dr. Sullivan subsequently served as a general medical officer for three years for the U. S. Public Health Service The first two years, he practiced medicine for the Indian Health Service, working with the Mescalero Apaches in Mescalero, New Mexico. The third year, he served at the U. S. Coast Guard Academy Hospital in New London, Conn. He returned to Rhode Island Hospital to do a two year residency in internal medicine, and then moved to this area to work at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington.

Caring for patients in a family-centered practice such as the one he has just assumed in Wilmington, Dr. Sullivan expects, will be both challenging and enjoyable. "Being in private practice is a happy change for me. This is the kind of practice where I'm seeing the same patients on a continuing basis. I enjoy getting to know my patients, and I find the variety challenging as well — you're dealing with a wide range of medical problems.

"And I'm very fortunate to have Joanne and Hermine here still," the physician adds. "They know Dr. Lepore's patients, and the patients know them. For me, and for the patients, people like them are important. I'm sure it's comforting to see a familiar face when you come to the doctor's office."

Chic to be poor

houses, with base command at Herbeck's Broadway Street home; her office is her living room; her phone, her own home line, and her business, helping people in need.

Herbeck herself is a somber-eyed, slight woman, always with a glint of humor, to leaven the seriousness of the CSN's mission of relief to the distressed.

The Network is, in an odd way, a curious anomaly of people helping others; it combines the methods of modern advocacy with sheer old-fashioned persistence, to cut through the turgid red tape that often accompanies a ponderous, faceless bureaucracy.

A member of the Welfare Board, Herbeck is a Stoneham native and daughter of the late, well-known Stoneham physician, Max Kleiner.

Despite a seemingly endless work week, she has occasional off-moments of rest and relaxation, between cigarettes and the ever-present cup of coffee, during which she takes time to talk of Nathanial Hawthorne or antique crystal, but she may suddenly switch-hit to the needs of an unwed mother or a family without home or food.

Her mind, sharp as a steel trap whose teeth are softened by an immense caring, seems to have an automatic emergency "HELP" antenna. Joanne (Chadwick) Tramontozzi, a third-generation Stonehamite, whose great-aunt, Florence Chadwick, was reportedly the first woman to swim the English Channel, like Herbeck, works a basic seven-day, unpaid week, though her work is alleviated by merely being "on-call" for weekend emergencies.

Herbeck doesn't utter "Great Hera," or "Suffering Sappho," while deflecting bullets or lightning bolts from Amazon bracelets, but there's a fictional character who may come to mind when you meet the CSN's Executive Director:

She's Yeoman First Class Diana Prince, better known to generations of fans as Wonder Woman and, not so coincidentally, Herbeck is in contention for the 1985 title of "Wonder Woman of the Year."

And if, by the way, you want to help, or if you or someone you know needs help, call 438-1977 and ask to speak to Sheila Herbeck, living wonder woman and, like all of her volunteer staff that I've met, a clear alloy of flesh, steel, compassion, and laughter.

Woodchips

ANTHONY MANCONI

Why do some people climb mountains, swim the English Channel or run in the Boston Marathon? I don't know. You could ask me "why do you write Woodchips?" and some weeks I would truthfully answer, "I don't know." Then I receive a letter a card or a phone call, telling me how some "chip" gave someone a lift, a laugh (or a groan after reading one of my corny jokes) or it just made someone's day a little brighter, then I know why I write Woodchips.

Some speak of love as though it was something they can give like a diamond ring, a car or watch. Love is not a product, it's a force, it's a power, like electricity. It is valueless unless used to make people's future brighter. With it two people are stronger together than either one is alone.

On my wedding day my wife Kathy looked stunningly beautiful and I looked stunned. When Fr. Mark asked, "do you take this women for your wife?" no one else answered so I said "I do." When we turned to march up the aisle she looked up at me with those gorgeous Irish blue eyes and said "straighten your tie stupid!" I can say after thirty years of marriage we've had only one argument, it started on our wedding day and it's been going on ever since. Two o'clock this morning she woke me up shouting, "get up, get up, I hear a mouse squeaking." "What the heck do you want me to do," I yelled, "get up and oil it?"

I read all of Merchant Marine Capt. Larz Neilson's articles. I know he understand how important radar was during WW II. This chit tells of one of many incidents where radar saved many lives. An urgent sounding voice on emergency radio, "Our radar has you on a collision course with us, alter your course ten degrees south." The response was quick, curt and insolent. "This is the Battleship Texas with Admiral Goodman aboard. You are commanded to alter your course ten degrees north." A clear, polite timid voice responded saying "With all due respect sir, the is Seaman Farnsworth on duty at the lighthouse with which you are on collision course with and will hit if you don't change your course!"

If you plan to visit any of our wonderful national parks this summer, take nothing but pictures and leave nothing but footprints.

Walter Surette, of Wilmington, has been our Sunday paper boy for over four years. He graduated from Merrimack College this past spring and is working in the computer field. Good luck Walter, I shall miss your ready smile."Politics", He gives you a smile. He's so full of charm. He walks down the aisle. He touches your arm. And then when you rise he helps with your coat. He looks in your eyes. "Lookout" He's after your vote!

The great boxing champion of the world, Joe Louis, was asked by a sports reporter, "Joe, in your entire career as a fighter who would you say hit you the hardest?" Joe smiled and said, "the IRS".

I thank Charlie and Tilly Cefalo of Stoneham for their lovely letter telling me they enjoy the humor in Woodchips. I showed the letter to my Aunt Maria of Wilmington who just can't believe it.

Woburn Elks waiter Leo Boisoneault called me the world's worst speller and I agree, so he gave me these the corrected version. Joe Altervesta, the smiling cooks, Jimmy Quinno, Gene Collins, Arthur Rogers and with this I need no help, Father Robert Burns, recently elevated to the exalted position of Manager of the 1300 member Woburn Elks. Many of us have seen that remarkable softball team known as "The King and his court" Well I'll certainly try not to miss seeing the beautiful women's version called "The Queen and her court." I am happy to learn that Joe Curley of Wakefield and commanding officer of a US Air Force Reserve unit that has his brother and my personal friend, Jimmy Curley, as a member has won the Air Force Reserve's Most Outstanding Evacuation Unit. Coming Attractions - expecting celestial company

By William Pacino

Halley's Comet, which departed from the skies in 1910, is approaching Earth once again and will swing by in late 1985 and early 1986. Already a crescendo of publicity is building up about the arrival of this famous celestial visitor.

To help the public view and enjoy Halley's Comet, SKY & TELESCOPE magazine has published a booklet telling exactly how to locate it in the sky. Such a guide is necessary because the comet will only be above the horizon at certain times of night, and even then it will be too dim to catch attention. Unfortunately, Halley's Comet does not come very near the Earth on this visit, so it will not be as spectacular as in past ages. Seeing it will be a bit of a challenge.

The booklet, titled "Mr. Halley's Comet", will enable anyone to find the comet at any date it is visible at all. The step-by-step instructions are specially tailored for people who know absolutely nothing about astronomy. The booklet also describes what comets are, offers tips on buying and using binoculars or a telescope for Halley, and tell how to photograph it. The writing is junior-high level.

Single copies may be ordered by sending $2 to "Mr. Halley's Comet", Sky & Telescope Magazine, 49 Bay State Road, Cambridge, MA 02238.

Sky & Telescope stresses that Halley will not be visible at all from cities, where lights wipe out the view of all but the brighest stars. A good view will require complete darkness at a rural site.

New Meadow Garden

Brilliant wildflowers in colors of raspberry, lavender, orange, white, blue, and gold dazzle visitors strolling through the newly opened Meadow Garden at the Garden in the Woods, Hemenway Rd., Framingham. No bending over to see these blossoms! Many of the plants such as Purple Cone Flowers, Stoke's Blue Asters, and Turk's-cap Lilies are four to six feet high with flowers as large as five inches in diameter.

Three thousand plants grown from seeds and cuttings at the Garden in the Woods were planted throughout this quarter-acre meadow. These plants represent 30 species of showy wildflowers native or naturalized in the Northeast. The Meadow Garden is an experimental, low-maintenance planting for open, sunny space with loamy soil. This colorful planting represents a lawn alternative.

The Garden in the Woods is open Tuesday to Sunday, 9 AM to 4 PM. Closed Monday. Library, exhibits, and gift shop on premises. Information/events line 877-6574 or office 237-4924.

Clowns of America

The Greater Boston Clowns of America Alley 54 will sponsor a Clown Day on Saturday, August 24th at Salem Willows Park on Fort Avenue, Salem. Activities for the public will begin at noon with face painting and photos followed by a free clown show at 2 PM. Clowns from the New England area will take part in this tenth annual event. All clowns and interested persons are invited to register (registration opens at 8:30 AM, fee is $10 per person) for morning workshops on juggling, balloonology and make-up. Clowns of American is an international organization with over 10,000 members. Alley 54 meets the second Tuesday of each month at 153 Fort Ave., Salem. For further information or clown registration, call Cheezo at 468-3214.

We're not clowning around this week, we are seriously exploring the skies while settled in the wildflowers. We are always looking for new events of interest to all, so if you know of something, pass it on. Time flies when you are having fun.

NO CLEARANCE SALE

Here at E. G. W., we're not having a Season's End Clearance Sale like the rest of the herd.
